Folk Society launches new concert series

Season's passes and individual tickets are now available for the 2016-17 Haliburton County Folk Society Concert Series. Once again the Haliburton County Folk Society has been able to attract some of the best Canadian performers. The group Betty and the Bobs was such a hit as the season opening concert and dance for the last two years that the crowd insisted they be invited back for yet another performance, in conjunction with the Hike Haliburton Festival on Sept. 24 at 7:30 p.m. at the Minden Hills Community Centre. Betty and the Bobs are ready to rock the room again this year with a variety of tunes from country, blues, R&B, Beatles, gospel, old jazz and wacky original songs. Each of these artists is a Canadian musical legend in his or her own right: when they come together they inspire the best of the best, with each performance being unique. The group consists of Soozi Schlanger, Suzie Vinnick, Katherine Wheatley, David Woodhead, Wendell Ferguson, Rich Greenspoon, and David Matheson.

The concert series has a total of five performances between September 2016 and June 2017. Barrie Martin, president of the Haliburton Folk Society, states that "The Folk Society works very hard to ensure that it presents the best combination of seasoned and new performers from the Canadian Folk scene. This year we are proud to announce the lineup with legends such as Valdy coupled with relative newbies such as Rosie and the Riveters. There is something here for every musical palette."

Purchasers of season's passes not only get a discounted ticket price, but are entered into a draw prior to each show. The winner of the draw will have dinner with the performer prior to the show and have reserved seating for the show. What a great opportunity to learn about the performer in a more intimate setting. Season's passes will only be available until Sept. 24. The public can purchase tickets online through the HaliburtonFolk.com website or in store at Halco Electronics/The Source in Haliburton or Organic Times in Minden.

Valdy, who is perhaps remembered best for Play Me a Rock and Roll Song, will be appearing in a matinee performance on Nov. 13. Valdy gives everything he has to the audience when he performs. It is difficult to describe, but there is an almost electric sense of energy shared by everyone in the room. He is a storyteller who is able to capture the small but significant moments in life.

The cultural spirit of the Haliburton Highlands has resulted in many excellent performers residing here. The fourth annual Homemade Stew concert on Jan. 28 is an opportunity for the public to experience the depth and breadth of talent that resides within our borders. They say you cannot be a prophet in your own land: The Homemade Stew concert is the Haliburton County Folk Society's way of ensuring that you can be a valued performer in your own county.

Juno nominee Amanda Rheaume, a Métis singer/songwriter with a powerful voice, will appear on April 1. Her music, although often tackling difficult and sometimes dark topics, will leave the audience hopeful and ready to shake off the darkness and start again. Rheaume has a powerful, slightly gritty, deeply personal, and instantly accessible folk/roots sound with elements of country, pop and soul.

The season finale with Rosie and the Riveters on June 17 is sure to leave a smile on the faces of the crowd. The group consists of four individually talented "sassy dames" from Saskatoon. The group's name was inspired by the feminist icon of the same name who empowered women in the workforce during the Second World War. Their music is uplifting and original with a 1940s flair. They are not only musicians but, performers who use their harmonies and body moves to charm the audience.

Alternate body types

Living Large

Humour by Steve Galea

If you are like me, you are probably sick of people saying you have a beach body. Just the other day three young people rushed up to me and started poking at me with a stick and checking me for a pulse. When I fended them off, one said, "Oh, sorry mister. We thought a body had washed up on the beach."

It was a funny way to say beach body, but the message was loud and clear.

The truth is I have always thought people focus way too much on this body type each summer. I mean, what about the other types of bodies that you see? Here are a few you might recognize:

1. The couch body: This is a body type chiseled from putting in hard hours on the couch. You know it has been perfected when the person appears to be carrying pillows under his shirt, but isn't.
2. The big dog walking body: Again, this is a very easily recognized body type. The key identifier is one arm (the leash-holding one) is longer than the other by as much as three feet.
3. The texting body: Large, nimble opposable thumbs, the heavy use of emojis and the ability to be resilient after walking into lampposts are just a few characteristics of this body type.
4. The bass fishing body: This body type is characterized by a raccoon-like face tan, an enlarged casting forearm and the thumb so calloused from holding bass by the lips that it appears to be a small club.
5. The beer body: This body style has the iconic beer belly, which evolved for practical reasons. If you have one there is always shade for your cooler.
6. The hill body: This type of body is common in Haliburton County where everywhere you walk is uphill and downhill walks do not exist. Oversized calves are the result – to the point where visitors think that thighs extending to our ankles is a local genetic trait.
7. The bug body: This is another common body type here. It is a body that has grown so flexible – from swatting mosquitoes between your shoulder blades and other normally unreachable places – that, on occasion, chiropractors are called in to untangle and sort out limbs.
8. The sociable body: Formed by years of waving and saying, "How are you now?" the palm of the dominant waving hand of the person with this body is reddened by the sun from waving. That person's waving muscles are also highly developed – to the point where they could step in for visiting royalty, should the situation require it.
9. The reach body: This body type is developed in people who are professional reachers. I'm speaking of those who pick berries, apples, or suggest that Game of Thrones has a lesson to teach us all. Long limbs and deft fingers for picking fruit or reaching for the remote are telltale signs.
10. The campfire body: This body belongs to the person who enjoys a nightly campfire at the beach or cottage. One side is well-done and if a man (and the owner of this type of body is almost always a man) the chest and eyebrow hairs that remain are terrified of the dark.

New detachment commander selected

The members of the Ontario Provincial Police Haliburton Highlands detachment are pleased to announce that Staff Sergeant Richard Riopelle will become the new detachment commander of Haliburton Highlands OPP.

Riopelle has been policing in the province of Ontario for over 17 years, having started his career in West Region – Essex County in 1999 and then transferred to North East Region where he served as a frontline member in a general duties detachment in Noelville.

In 2002, a transfer saw Riopelle head off to East Region where he served 8.5 years carrying out various duties before being promoted to frontline supervisor (Sgt) in 2009. Riopelle then transferred to Sioux Lookout in North West Region in 2010 where he became the operations manager for Sioux Lookout and the manager for the North West Patrol Unit encompassing two First Nations patrol areas.

In 2012, Riopelle was promoted to the rank of staff sergeant and transferred back to North East Region where he took on the duties as detachment operations manager for the cluster of East Algoma which included the Blind River, Elliot Lake and Thessalon Detachments.

Riopelle is looking forward to moving into Haliburton County with his family and leading the Haliburton Highlands detachment.

"I am very privileged and honoured to now have the opportunity to lead and support the great members of the Haliburton Highlands OPP detachment. My entire family and I are looking forward to our future with the Haliburton Highlands detachment members and the opportunity to live within and be part of such a beautiful and close community".

The members of the Haliburton Highlands detachment would like to take this opportunity to welcome Riopelle along with his wife and three children to the Haliburton Highlands Detachment and Haliburton County.

Riopelle assumed command on July 4.

"My entire family and I are looking forward to our future with the Haliburton Highlands detachment members and the opportunity to live within and be part of such a beautiful and close community.

— Sergeant Richard Riopelle

Vignettes from life: A sprig o'heather

By Peter Walford-Davis

It was the summer of '46. The Second World War had finally ended, and nations were beginning the task of rebuilding. I could care less, as I had had my tonsils removed, for a second time, but now my father and I were on our way to the Highlands of Scotland, specifically to Pitlochry, a village on the banks of the River Tummel, for a two week holiday, staying at the Airth Hotel.

We spent most of our time walking, Dad striding along as he always did, and me following, lagging behind, trying to keep up. One could smell the buttery aroma of the pine trees. Further on, fields that wound their way up to the foothills of the mountain. Crofters cottages buried themselves in the side of the hills. Sheep dotted the landscape like little cotton balls, and as we climbed higher a plateau appeared, one as large as two football fields covered from end to end with purple heather. It was a little bit of heaven, lying on the heather, listening to the bees, and watching the clouds scud across the azure sky. Sitting up one could see the fields, sheep and pine groves. And in the distance the River Tummel twisting and turning like a silvery snake. What a beautiful vista! What a wonderful memory!

We tried out luck fishing in the river, with a bent pin and a piece of string. Miracle of miracles, we actually caught a small trout. I suspect it took pity on us and jumped on to the hook, and we in turn, in a random act of kindness, untangled it and let it slip back into the water, where it wiggled away in relief.

One morning we walked up main street to buy a paper, and possibly a chocolate bar. Now the road narrows where the news agent's shop stands, and across the road is a garage. On this particular morning, a bus had been drawn across the road, leaving only one lane, this being manned by police, who were checking each driver's credentials. Why? We wondered. It became clear within a few minutes, as a passerby informed us that a British soldier had somehow offended his superior officer, and had been put into the prison in a military camp some miles up the road. Being very upset at being incarcerated, and anxious to be with his wife who lived in Bristol, and due to give birth to their first child, he broke out of the jail, and made off with a 60-foot long air force parts trailer, and was headed this way, determined to be at his wife's bedside. It might be advisable to let you know that there were no other roads south, until one had passed through Pitlochry.

Suddenly, we were told to scatter, as he had been seen, not with the trailer, but an army ambulance. The bus was driven to block off the other lane. So now he was trapped. There was no escape. So we waited. The air filled with a nervous expectancy. A dog sauntered onto the road, scratched, and stretched, then laid down in the shade of the bus. All was still. In the distance we could hear the whine of an engine being pushed to its limit, and there he was bearing down on the bus, cutting the wheels as soon as he saw it he drove into the parking lot of the North British Hotel, lept out of the cab and ran into the woods. A sprig of heather clung to the radiator. But it didn't bring him any luck. He was caught and sent back to the military camp.

Life returned to normalcy in Pitlochry. The dog wandered off, the bus returned to the garage. And we bought the paper, and I got the chocolate bar. But that is not the end of the story, for our intrepid hero stole a private car and drove through Pitlochry at 7:30 a.m. the next morning. Such determination! But I do believe that the military authorities would be waiting at the hospital, to share in the joy of the baby's birth and to cop the errant daddy!

Leave the phone alone

By Angela Long

Haliburton County director of public works Craig Douglas, left, engineering assistant Brian Mulholland, and outgoing Staff Sergeant for the Minden detachment Brian Crisp are taking steps to educate drivers about the dangers of distracted driving. As of July 1, 50 re-purposed signs have been strategically placed at the beginning of all county roads. ANGELA LONG Staff

In the wake of disturbing new statistics, police throughout Ontario are gathering forces to spread a new message: "Leave the Phone Alone." Distracted driving, which includes the use of handheld devices while driving and the use of in-vehicle entertainment systems visible to the driver, is on the rise.

According to the OPP, 3,574 collisions on OPP patrolled roadways were caused by distracted driving last year, an amount nearly five times higher than alcohol-related collisions. While speed continues to remain the main cause of all collisions, distracted driving is the leading cause of fatal collisions. Quite simply, distracted driving kills.

Haliburton Highlands OPP Staff Sergeant Brian Crisp knows these statistics well. For this reason, the OPP and County of Haliburton officials have collaborated to reduce the number of incidents, improve road safety and educate drivers. As of last week, 50 signs have been strategically placed at the beginning of every county road providing a visual reminder to leave your phone alone.

The problem, writes Crisp in an email, is that many drivers "make the mistake of over-estimating their driving skills," believing the dangers of texting and talking on their phones while driving only applies to poor drivers.

New signs to increase driver awareness

Several years ago, the U.S. Department of Transportation launched an aggressive campaign against distracted driving, calling it a "dangerous epidemic on America's roadways." Studies by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration show that texting for just five seconds while driving 90 kilometres per hour is the equivalent of driving blind for the length of a football field. Seventy-seven per cent of teen drivers are confident they can text and drive safely. However, a 2013 study by the Cohen Children's Medical Center in New York concluded that texting while driving had surpassed drinking and driving as the No. 1 cause of teenage deaths.

Crisp fears we are now experiencing an epidemic similar to the U.S.

"We know that enforcement is not enough," he writes." We need to use effective educational tools that aim to change perceptions."

Distracted driving isn't about skill, Crisp stresses. Its dangers apply to everyone.

And so do the fines. The fine for distracted driving rose to $490 in September 2015, and three demerit points.

Exceptions to the law include calling 9-1-1, and two-way CB radios. Also, while in the line of duty, police, emergency medical services personnel and firefighters may use hand-held devices and view display screens.

Senior's Spotlight

Pearl Cowen: the ultimate gamer

By Jenn Watt

Minden's Pearl Cowen loves games: euchre, shuffleboard and bingo occupy much of the 70-year-old's life. She volunteers to coordinate the Minden and Stanhope shuffleboard leagues. She helps at Hyland Crest long-term care home with their euchre and bingo games. And she teaches, scores and plays euchre at a dizzying array of card venues around the county each week.

Widowed since she was 46, when her husband Arnold passed away, Cowen has been keeping herself busy – very busy – nearly every spare moment of the week.

Shuffleboard in Minden is Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Bingo at Hyland Crest is Saturday, euchre is Wednesday. Then there's two Monday euchre games: one that she scores at St. Paul's and another at the apartments on Prentice Street. Tuesdays euchre is played at the Legion. Thursdays it's at the arena. Fridays she teaches bid euchre at the apartments. She is also a convener for the senior games, which takes up considerable time in May and June.

The Cowens are through-and-through Minden. As a child, Pearl went to the "Little Line School," which is what she calls the Scotch Line School, before transferring to Archie Stouffer Elementary. She and Arnold moved to Oshawa for a couple of years while he worked at General Motors, but that was short-lived and the pair came back to Minden again.

Pearl worked at most of the restaurants in town at one point or another during her career including the Dominion Hotel, Pioneer Grill, Cameo and the Oasis. If most of those sound unfamiliar it's because only the Dominion still operates under the same name.

Some of the restaurants were lost in fire. The Oasis is now Village Restaurant.

Cowen has two children, Teresa and Harold, five grandchildren and one great-grandson.

Staying in Minden has meant that she is surrounded by family: the McKelveys on her side and the Cowens on Arnold's. She says she enjoys having the connections and equally appreciates country living.

"My daughter lived in the city before they moved up here. I don't like it in Toronto at all. I like to be here," she says.

It's hard to imagine Cowen anywhere other than her apartment in the centre of Minden, walking distance to all of her passions.

When it rains at night, she's out on the shuffleboard courts at 6 a.m. with a mop so it will be dry for players at 9.

She discloses with a mischievous gleam in her eye that she continued to play shuffleboard one week after having knee surgery in November. She used her walker, she contends, and didn't exert herself. You couldn't keep her away.

Pearl Cowen, 70, is active in the community. She is a key organizer in bingo at Hyland Crest, shuffleboard in Minden and in Stanhope and numerous euchre games around the county. She says being involved keeps her active and happy. JENN WATT Staff

Fourth annual Tall Pine Tales coming up

If you're looking for an enjoyable way to spend an evening and feed your soul, please join The Reading/Writing Connection and the Cottage Country Writers, for a smorgasbord of food and stories on July 20, at 6 p.m., in the Community Room, 13523 - Highway 118, in Haliburton.

The Reading/Writing Connection presents the fourth annual Tall Pine Tales, a series of public readings featuring talented writers from Muskoka and Haliburton Highlands. Tall Pine Tales was the brainchild of Melody Richardson. The event was such a great success, writers in Muskoka and Haliburton Highlands formed The Cottage Country Writers, to organize and plan the event and continue Melody's dream.

The Tall Pine Tales Series for 2016 will be held on July 20, in Haliburton Highlands; July 27, at the Huntsville Library; Aug. 10, at the Baysville Library, 10 University Ave.; and Aug. 22, at the Bracebridge Library, 94 Manitoba St.

Haliburton Highlands? Tall Pine Tales, will be held in the Community Room in Haliburton Village. Please join our master of ceremonies, Jim Poling, Sr., author and journalist, and local writers Margot Ziorjen, Sharon Lawrence, and Fred Gregory, who will be among nine literary artists representing Muskoka and Haliburton Highlands. Don't miss this opportunity to hear talented writers share captivating memoirs and fiction, laced with humour.

You are invited to meet the authors at 6 p.m., while enjoying a buffet supper. The readings are scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. and door prizes will be drawn throughout the evening. Admission is $20 and tickets are available by contacting Pat Bett at 705-455-9074.

Health unit office closes for lunch hour

The local health unit office will now be closed from 1 to 2 p.m. for lunch hour each weekday.

The Haliburton office of the Haliburton, Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Unit located at 191 Highland Street will be closed between 1 to 2 pm. The change arises from recent staffing changes.

Residents may still drop well water samples off at the health unit, as there will be a cooler and instructions located outside the office door, but they will be unable to speak to any health unit staff during that time. For all inquiries during this one-hour time, residents can call the health unit at 705-457-1391 or visit the website at www.hkpr.on.ca.

The closure will remain in effect throughout the summer and be re-evaluated in the fall.

With such great taste,
we always felt a little under dressed.
